International Congress on Chinese Language Teaching in Latin America and the Caribbean

Date: September 5 and 6, 2024

Location: Santiago de Chile (hybrid format)

The International Congress on Chinese Language Teaching in Latin America and the Caribbean is organized by the CLEC Foundation, Regional Office for Latin America and the Caribbean. It is an academic event of international relevance whose main objective is to promote the exchange of experiences, knowledge and good practices in the teaching of the Mandarin Chinese language in the Latin American and Caribbean region. This congress will be held in a hybrid format, allowing both face-to-face and virtual participation of speakers and attendees.

We invite academics, directors, coordinators, researchers, teachers, students and professionals interested in the field of Mandarin Chinese language teaching to participate in the International Congress to be held on September 5 and 6, 2024 in Santiago, Chile, or virtually through the digital platform Zoom.

Themes

The papers presented must be framed in one of the following thematic axes in paper format (duration of 15 minutes):

1. Innovative Methodologies in Mandarin Chinese Language Teaching: Exploring new pedagogical strategies and approaches to facilitate effective learning of Mandarin Chinese, such as the use of participatory technologies and methodologies.
2. Development of Teaching Materials and Technological Resources for the Teaching of Mandarin Chinese: Presentation and analysis of innovative teaching materials, mobile applications, educational games, online platforms, and other technological resources designed for autonomous and collaborative learning of Mandarin Chinese.
3. Experiences and Good Practices in the Teaching of Mandarin Chinese in Latin America and the Caribbean: Sharing successful experiences, lessons learned and models of
